redistribution of responsibilities human security provides one of the most important protections a person centred axis of freedom from fear from want and to live with dignity it is surprising given its centrality to the human experience that its connection with human rights has not yet been explored in a truly systematic way this important new book addresses that gap in the literature by analysing whether human security might provide the tools for an expansive and integrated interpretation of international human rights the examination takes a two part approach firstly it evaluates convergences between human security and all human rights civil political economic social and cultural and constructs an investigative framework focused on the human security human rights synergy it then goes on to explore its practical application in the thematic cores of violence against women and undocumented migrants in the law and case law of un european inter american and african human rights bodies it takes both a legal and interdisciplinary approach recognising that human security and its relationship with human rights cuts across disciplinary boundaries innovative and rigorous this is an important contribution to human rights scholarship this book examines how national security strategies relate to an emerging common european or global vision of security and to human security ideas human security and national security are often regarded as competing and mutually antagonistic the former was proposed and has been operationalised in ways which represent a paradigm shift away from state centric approaches and the dominance of national security perspectives this has led to human security being associated with a broadening of the security agenda to encompass not only physical security the use of force and military capabilities but also the provision of material well being and dignity to vulnerable communities this edited volume seeks to identify key concepts and themes in the national discourse of several european countries addressing security at a meta narrative and conceptual level illustrating the changes taking place in approaches to security and in particular mapping moves away from a paradigm of national security to one which might be called human security it also enables an assessment of whether national security is currently converging at either european or global levels this book will be of much interest to students of human security european religion identity and human security seeks to demonstrate that a major source of human insecurity comes from the failure of states around the world to recognize the increasing cultural diversity of their populations which has resulted from globalization shani begins by setting out the theoretical foundations dealing with the transformative effects of globalization on identity violence and security the second part of the volume then draws on different cases of sites of human insecurity around the globe to develop these ideas examining themes such as securitization of religious symbols retreat from multiculturalism rise of exclusivist ethno religious identities post 9 11 state religion colonization and the racialization of migration highlighting that religion can be a source of both human security and insecurity in a globalizing world shani offers a critical human security paradigm that seeks to de secularize the individual by recognizing the culturally contested and embedded nature of human identities the work argues that religion serves an important role in re embedding individuals deracinated from their communities by neo liberal globalization and will be of interest to students of international relations security studies and religion and politics there is a real security gap in the world today millions of people in regions like the middle east or east and central africa or central asia where new wars are taking place live in daily fear of violence moreover new wars are increasingly intertwined with other global risks the spread of disease vulnerability to natural disasters poverty and homelessness yet our security conceptions drawn from the dominant experience of world war ii and based on the use of conventional military force do not reduce that insecurity rather they make it worse this book is an exploration of this security gap it makes the case for a new approach to security based on a global conversation a public debate among civil society groups and individuals as well as states and international institutions the chapters follow on from kaldors path breaking analysis of the character of new wars in places like the balkans or africa during the 1990s the first four chapters provide a context they cover the experience of humanitarian intervention the nature of american power the new nationalist and religious movements that are associated with globalization and how these various aspects of current security dilemmas have played out in the balkans the last three chapters are more normative dealing with the evolution of the idea of global civil society the relevance of just war theory in a global era and the concept of human security and what it might mean to implement such a concept this book will appeal to all those interested in issues of peace and conflict in particular to students of politics and international relations in 1994 the united nations development program undp coined the term human security in the seminal undp human development report this report approached security for the first time from a holistic perspective security would no longer be viewed from a purely military perspective but rather it would encapsulate economic food health environmental personal community and political security although the concept of human security accords a higher status to individual interests rather than to governmental interests human security discourses have continually emphasized the central role of states as providers of human security this volume challenges this paradigm and highlights the part played by non state actors in threatening human security as well as in rescuing or providing relief to those whose human security is endangered the book does so from a legal perspective international law being one of the instruments used to realize human security as well as being a material source or guiding principle for the formation of human security enhancing policies in particular the book critically discusses how various non state actors such as armed opposition groups multinational corporations private military security companies non governmental organizations and national human rights institutions participate in the construction of such policies and how they are held legally accountable for their adverse impact on human security series international law vol 12

the book asserts that human security derives from the experience and expectation of human well being which depends on four essential conditions a life sustaining environment the meeting of essential physical needs respect for the identity and dignity of persons and groups protection from avoidable harm and expectations of remedy from them the book demonstrates their integral relationship to human security patriarchy being the germinal paradigm from which most major human institutions such as the state the economy organised religions and social relations have evolved the book argues that fundamental inequalities must be challenged for the sake of equality and security the fundamental point raised is that expectation of human well being is a continuing cause of armed conflict which constitutes a threat to peace and survival of all humanity and human security cannot exist within a militarised security system the editors of the book bring together 14 essays which critically examine militarised security in order to find human security pathways show ways in which to refute the dominant paradigm indicate a clear gender analysis that challenges the current system and suggests alternatives to militarised security with a mix of female and male feminist scholar activists as contributors the book makes an important contribution to a new discourse on human security tracing the key evolutions in the development of the concept of human security this book contributes to this new multidimensional conception of security showing its strengths and weaknesses as well as its implications for analysis and action the past decades have seen enormous changes in our perceptions of security the causes of insecurity and the measures adopted to address them threats of terrorism and the impacts of globalisation and mass migration have shaped our identities politics and world views this volume of essays analyses these shifts in thinking and in particular critically engages with the concept of human security from legal international relations and human rights perspectives contributors consider the special circumstances of non citizens such as refugees migrants and displaced and stateless persons and assess whether conceptually and practically human security helps to address the multiple challenges they face the world turned topsy turvy after covid 19 pandemic the whole equation and thrust of global politics and economics is now at a new verge the main question is now how we can secure human race and humanity this is the main thrust of the book changing dimensions of human security in contemporary world this book is an outcome of collective research work done by erudite scholars from different parts of world like usa russia japan australia romania nigeria nepal bangladesh and india who has come together in search of new trends of human security they touched upon different milieu as well as dimensions of human security and pandemic in contemporary world scenario in thirty two essays forty seven authors collectively explored situation of human security in several domains including international politics law economy labour force sustainable development education gender and may more i believe that this collection of essays can become a benchmark for the future as well as spur new research agendas and projects that will put the region into a much needed conversation on the recent trends of human security in contemporary world this book will try to reimagining this changing dimension of human security in the pandemic situation the goal of this book is to improve the standards of the international community of academicians researchers scholars and scientists by exposing them to the latest trends developments and challenges in the field the volume is essential reading for social scientists bureaucrats and non governmental political activists interested in human security it will also appeal to public policy analysts and scholars who have yet to adopt the contribution of critical security and development studies in the analysis of different dimensions of human security globalization difference and human security seeks to advance critical human security studies by re framing the concept of human security in terms of the thematic of difference drawing together a wide range of contributors the volume is framed among others around the following key questions what are the silences and erasures of advancing a critical human security alternative without making recognition of difference its central plank how do we rethink the complex interplay of human security and difference in distinct and varied spatial and cultural settings produced by global forces what is the nexus between human security and the broader field of global development what new challenges to human security and international relations are produced with the rise of the post liberal or post secular subject in what ways releasing human security from identification with the territorial state helps reconceptualize culture how does human security serve as a subspecies of modern humanitarian thought or the latter reinforce imperial imaginaries and the structures of order and morality is the pursuit of indigenous rights fundamentally counterpoised to the pursuit of human security what difference it might make to take the doings and beings of communities of subsistence rather than basic needs wealth seeking individuals as a point of departure in critical human security studies how does reconstruction bind post war and post disaster states and societies into the global capitalist democratic political structure in africa various conditions pose pervasive threats to human security addressing these threats and promoting human security therefore constitute formidable challenges as the paradigmatic shift in the discourse on and practice of human security has led to a change in the normative emphasis from sovereignty and non intervention to responsibility and international humanitarian and human rights norms questions arise not only as to the relationship between human security and human rights but also as to the contribution of the human rights system in addressing human security threats and promoting human freedom what tools does the african human rights system have at its disposal that can be used in the promotion of human security on the continent what are the roles of the african commission and the ahrc in this regard what are the potentials and the challenges how best can these human rights bodies be employed to optimise their contributions to addressing the pervasive human security threats and to promoting the well being of individuals and communities on the continent this monograph investigates these and similar issues including the basic one of the interface between human rights and human security adopting an interdisciplinary perspective freedom from fear freedom from want is a brief introduction to human security conflict and development the book analyzes such key human security issues as climate change crimes against humanity humanitarian intervention international law poverty terrorism and transnational crime among others the authors encourage readers to critically assess emerging threats while evaluating potential mechanisms of deterrence such as conflict resolution economic development diplomacy peacekeeping international law and restorative justice concise yet comprehensive freedom from fear freedom from want is an ideal text for human security courses today the number of armed conflicts worldwide has dropped the number of refugees has declined and human rights violations are reported to be less frequent than during the 1990s does this mean that the world has become more peaceful not necessarily it is a fact that 18 percent of the world s population still lives on less than us 1 per day atrocious inter state conflicts are raging across the world and many problems do not stop at national borders most conflicts have an economic dimension it is also a fact that more and more conflicts are solved through mediation and negotiation it is therefore important to highlight the influence of companies regarding conflict the link between economic factors and mediation and the role of companies in mediation processes a stable environment is an essential requirement for business activity human security helps to create stability poverty under development and discrimination on the other hand create a breeding ground for violent conflict the areas of activity for political actors seeking to promote human security generally as well as promote human security through companies are different however the primary goals are the same stability and security as the prerequisites for economic success and human security to achieve these goals it is necessary to assume responsibility and to look for new forms of cooperation given the nature of today s world order and of the existing challenges a multi layered cooperation approach between politics and civil society and above all between politics and business should be developed economic actors must realize that they have an influence on contemporary political events and thus have a responsibility for the creation of stability political actors in turn need to start accepting greater responsibility and acknowledge that foreign trade policy is not neutral and that they therefore need to find the correct balance between economic social and ecological interests the private sector besides maximizing profits can make a major contribution towards improving human security although the business case for complying with human rights and for contributing to peace promotion has been made the connection between ethical behavior and financial performance needs to be established although this field has not yet been explored in sufficient depth studies show that there is no negative correlation between company responsibility and economic performance the choice should be clear when confronted with the question shall we simply make profits or shall we make profits and create additional social benefits
